Mark A. Hejna, Sr. is a project manager for the Construction Division of Gundaker Commercial Group, Inc. (GCG). With more than 25 years experience in the St. Louis Construction industry, he has overseen several residential, commercial and land development projects. His accomplishments include a 50-unit luxury town home community, development of 103 acres into residential lots, a 100-acre mixed use development, a 17-acre commercial land development project, land developments of 79 acres and 78 acres into residential lots, and a 140-unit substantial apartment renovation project. With land development as one of Mark's top strengths, GCG relies upon his expertise to oversee projects across the St. Louis Metropolitan area. One of his specialities is coordinating with municipalities to release escrow work in which the city will finalize a land development job and absorb the future maintenance of residential and commercial developments.

Mark has built an extensive record of achievement and has a reputation for quality, hard work, persistence and the ability to maintain strong client relationships. He is a firm believer in continuing education and has taken numerous courses in plan review, estimation, business management, code enforcement, American Concrete Institute courses, certification for erosion control and various computer software application courses. His dedication to his career keeps him striving to achieve the highest standard on every project he undertakes.

Mark is a licensed real estate agent and a member of the St. Louis Engineer's Club and the American Concrete Institute. He has served as past president of the Board of Trustees for River Oaks Subdivision and as a board member for the Catholic Youth Council.
